The Civil Service is the backbone of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR). It is responsible to the Chief Executive (CE). It supports the CE and the Government of the day in formulating, explaining and implementing policies; providing administrative support; delivering public services; and undertaking law enforcement and regulatory functions. It serves the community, and contributes to the effective governance and stability and prosperity of Hong Kong.

The Secretary for the Civil Service (SCS) is one of the Principal Officials appointed under the Political Appointment System and a Member of the Executive Council. The SCS heads the Civil Service Bureau (CSB) of the Government Secretariat and is responsible to the CE for civil service policies as well as the overall management and development of the civil service. The SCS’ primary role is to ensure that the civil service serves the best interests of the community and delivers various services in a trustworthy, efficient and cost effective manner. The CSB assumes overall policy responsibility for the management of the civil service, including such matters as appointment, pay and conditions of service, staff management, manpower planning, training and discipline.

Under the Basic Law and the Civil Service Code (the Code), it has been the duty of civil servants to uphold the Basic Law, bear allegiance to the HKSAR, be dedicated to their duties and be responsible to the HKSAR Government. According to the Code, civil servants shall serve the CE and the Government of the day with total loyalty and to the best of their ability.

All serving civil servants have signed a declaration that they will uphold the Basic Law, bear allegiance to the HKSAR, be dedicated to their duties and be responsible to the HKSAR Government. Prospective appointees to the civil service shall sign the declaration as one of the conditions for appointment. Civil servants appointed to senior positions, including Permanent Secretaries and Heads of Departments, are also required to take an oath.

The following are the core values of the civil service as set out in the Code, which all civil servants are required to uphold:

- commitment to the rule of law;
- honesty and integrity;
- objectivity and impartiality;
- political neutrality;
- accountability for decisions and actions; and
- dedication, professionalism and diligence.

The Hong Kong civil service provides a wide range of services, e.g. public works and the construction, maintenance and operation of public facilities, cleansing and public health, education, social welfare, promotion of trade and commerce, fire services and maintenance of law and order. These services are often provided by different public authorities in many countries. By contrast, Hong Kong civil servants are responsible for a wide variety of work.

As at March 31, 2022, the civil service employed about 176 200 people (excluding judges, judicial officers, officers of the Independent Commission Against Corruption and locally engaged staff working in the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Offices outside Hong Kong) or about 4.6 per cent of Hong Kong’s labour force. About 1 400 of them were directorate officers. The annual growth of the civil service establishment had been mostly in the range of 1 per cent to 1.9 per cent between 2007-08 and 2020-21. The civil service establishment recorded zero growth in 2021-22. The Government’s target of zero growth in the civil service establishment remains unchanged in 2022-23, with the aim of ensuring the sustainability of public finance.

Appointments: Appointment to the civil service (including recruitment and promotion) is based on the principle of open and fair competition. Candidates have to go through a competitive selection process and the most suitable and the most meritorious persons are selected to fill civil service vacancies. Vacancies at the basic ranks of civil service grades are normally filled by open recruitment and/or in-service recruitment from other grades. As for promotion rank vacancies, they are generally filled by promotion from within the service. Where no officer from the relevant lower rank is considered suitable for promotion, consideration may be given to conducting open recruitment to fill these vacancies.

Recruitment: Entry requirements for civil service posts are set with regard to the operational need of the grades/ranks concerned, such as academic or professional qualifications, technical skills, work experience, language proficiency and other qualities as required. During the recruitment process, the Government assesses all candidates on their ability, performance and character, having regard to the stipulated entry requirements set according to the operational need of the grade concerned. On this basis, the Government will ensure that all applicants, including disabled and ethnic minority candidates, who aspire to join the civil service will have equal access to government job opportunities.

In accordance with the Basic Law, civil servants appointed on or after July 1, 1997 must be permanent residents of the HKSAR, save for certain specified exceptions.

In addition, all applicants for civil service jobs will be assessed on their knowledge on the Basic Law and the National Security Law. For all civil service recruitment exercises advertised on or after July 1, 2022, attaining a pass result in the Basic Law and National Security Law Test is an entry requirement for all civil service jobs.

Promotion: Officers are promoted based on the criteria of character, ability, experience and prescribed qualifications for the promotion rank. All eligible officers are considered on an equal basis.

Public Service Commission: The Commission is an independent statutory body responsible for advising the CE on civil service appointment, promotion and discipline matters. The chairman and members of the Commission are appointed by the CE. The Commission seeks to safeguard the impartiality and integrity of the appointment and promotion systems in the civil service. It also aims to ensure that fairness and broad consistency in disciplinary punishment are maintained throughout the civil service. The Commission’s remit is stipulated in the Public Service Commission Ordinance and its subsidiary regulations. The Commission is also consulted on policy and procedural issues pertaining to appointment, promotion and discipline applicable to the civil service.

Independent Advisory Bodies on Pay and Conditions of Service: Three independent bodies advise the CE on matters relating to pay and conditions of service of civil servants.1 Their members are from outside the Government. The Standing Committee on Directorate Salaries and Conditions of Service advises on pay and conditions of service matters affecting the civilian directorate and heads of disciplined services. The Standing Commission on Civil Service Salaries and Conditions of Service advises on the principles and practices governing the pay and conditions of service of non-directorate staff except those in the judicial and disciplined services. The Standing Committee on Disciplined Services Salaries and Conditions of Service advises on the pay and conditions of service of disciplined services staff except the heads of the services. These advisory bodies are supported by the Joint Secretariat for the Advisory Bodies on Civil Service and Judicial Salaries and Conditions of Service.

Pay Policy and System: It is the Government's established policy to offer sufficient remuneration to attract, retain and motivate staff of a suitable calibre to provide the public with an effective and efficient service; and to maintain broad comparability between civil service and private sector pay.

Under the improved civil service pay adjustment mechanism, three sets of surveys are conducted to assess how the prevailing civil service pay compares with the pay in the private sector and, having regard to the findings of the surveys, whether and how civil service pay should be adjusted. The three sets of surveys are the annual pay trend survey, the six-yearly pay level survey and the starting salaries survey which will be conducted as and when necessary. Apart from these surveys, grade structure reviews for individual grades will also be conducted as and when necessary.

Apart from salaries, civil servants are eligible for various fringe benefits depending on their terms of appointment, rank, salary point, length of service and other eligibility rules. The Government has been taking proactive steps over the years to modernise the provision of fringe benefits to civil servants.

Training and Development: The Government attaches great importance to civil service training, and is committed to nurturing a forward-looking, visionary and innovative civil service to tackle different challenges and deliver outstanding public services. While individual bureaux and departments take charge of providing vocational training to meet job-specific needs of their officers, the Civil Service College under the CSB is responsible for providing training courses and services to meet service-wide training needs of civil servants. Established in December 2021, the College undertakes the important mission of strengthening training for civil servants on various fronts, in particular training to deepen civil servants’ understanding of the HKSAR’s constitutional order, including our country’s Constitution, the Basic Law and the Hong Kong National Security Law, as well as our country’s development. The College also provides training to strengthen leadership development and innovation and technology application, and to broaden civil servants’ international outlook. Moreover, the College would strengthen exchanges with civil servants in other places, and promote the development of Hong Kong into a regional training hub.

The Civil Service College is currently located in North Point pending the construction of its long-term accommodation in Kwun Tong. Upgraded training facilities and equipment will be provided to support more effective delivery of training services in terms of quality, flexibility and diversity.

The Government set up in November 2019 a Civil Service Training Advisory Board to give guidance on the training programmes and long-term development strategy for the civil service.

Performance Management: As an integral part of the overall human resource management strategy, performance management is a major tool in human resource planning (e.g. succession planning), development (e.g. training and job rotation) and management (e.g. confirmation to the permanent establishment, promotion, posting and action to address under-performance). Through the performance management process, supervisors and staff communicate on the work objectives and expected standard of performance. Proper management of the process helps maximise individual performance and improve weaknesses, thereby enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of the civil service.

Performance management is an on-going process. While appraisal reports are normally completed annually, continuous communication between managers and staff on performance is essential. Transparency, objectivity and timeliness in appraisal are emphasised in the process.

Departmental management is encouraged to establish assessment panels to undertake levelling and moderating work among appraisal reports where necessary, identify substandard and outstanding performers for appropriate action, and adopt other management tools including target-based assessment and competency-based assessment to facilitate comprehensive and objective performance appraisal.

Good performance management ensures that exemplary performers are rewarded or given due recognition, whilst under-performers are managed, counselled and offered assistance to bring their performance up to requirement. For persistent substandard performers who fail to improve, action will be taken to retire them in the public interest. On the other hand, there are commendation schemes to award officers with meritorious performance. These schemes include, inter alia, the Secretary for the Civil Service’s Commendation Award Scheme, the Commendation Letter Scheme and the Long and Meritorious Service Travel Award Scheme.

Staff Discipline: The Government attaches great importance to the conduct and integrity of civil servants. On the whole, civil servants are law-abiding and dedicated to their duties. We have spared no efforts in putting across the message to all civil servants, through various means (including training and the declaration requirement), on the great importance attached by the Government to civil service discipline and the Government’s expectations and requirements on their conduct and integrity. As regards individual officers who have breached the law or misconducted themselves, the Government would handle the cases seriously under the civil service disciplinary mechanism. Generally speaking, if an officer is alleged to have breached government regulations or official instructions, his/her department will conduct internal investigation in accordance with established procedures. Where upon investigation there is evidence showing that the officer has misconducted himself/herself, the management will take appropriate disciplinary action, including imposing disciplinary punishment of verbal warning, written warning, reprimand, severe reprimand, compulsory retirement, dismissal, etc. Likewise, the management will also take appropriate disciplinary action against an officer, on top of the sanctions imposed by the court, if the officer has been convicted of criminal offence by the court. The Government takes a serious approach against civil servants who have breached the law or misconducted themselves. In handling disciplinary cases, the Government would, apart from upholding fairness and impartiality, also strive to complete the cases within a reasonable timeframe and promptly impose appropriate punishment, so as to achieve the necessary punitive and deterrent effects.

Staff Relations: There is a well-established staff consultative machinery at both the central and departmental levels. Centrally, there are four central consultative councils, namely the Senior Civil Service Council, the Model Scale 1 Staff Consultative Council, the Police Force Council and the Disciplined Services Consultative Council. Through these councils, the Government consults staff on major changes which affect their conditions of service.

At the departmental level, there are departmental consultative committees which aim to improve cooperation and understanding between management and staff through regular exchange of views.

There are established channels to deal with staff grievances and complaints. Individual staff with problems can receive counselling, advice and help.

A Staff Suggestions Scheme is run by both the CSB and departments to encourage staff to make suggestions for improving the efficiency of the civil service. Awards are given to those whose suggestions are found useful.
